CPF Nominations: What Happens To Your CPF When You Pass Away?

CPF Nominations: What Happens To Your CPF When You Pass Away?

Key Takeaways

- CPF funds cannot be distributed through a will
- Without a nomination, intestacy laws will determine who gets your CPF savings
- Making a nomination lets you choose who gets your CPF savings and how much each person should receive

CPF savings (balances left in a deceased member's Ordinary, Medisave and Special/Retirement Accounts) do not form part of the estate and are not covered by a Will.

If you don't make a CPF nomination, the money will be distributed via intestacy laws. It will take time to locate the legally-entitled beneficiaries, and a fee will be payable to the Public Trustee's Office to make the distribution.

You should make a CPF nomination if you want your CPF savings to be distributed according to your wishes.

Who You Can Nominate

You can nominate any person or organisation to be the beneficiary of your CPF savings. There is no limit to the number of nominees you can appoint.

How To Make A Nomination

You must be 16 years and above, and of sound mind to make a CPF nomination.

You can now make a CPF nomination online conveniently anytime, anywhere.

If you have made a CPF nomination, you can review your nomination details online to ensure it continues to meet your needs.

It's a good idea to review your nomination when circumstances change. Note that marriage will revoke a CPF nomination.

Introduction To Retirement Planning
Retiring well requires planning. Here's how to get started, from tips to create a retirement income to managing your finances during retirement.
Read more

← PREVIOUS
Deciding How To Transfer Your Estate

NEXT →
What Is A Will?