For members who have met the Full Retirement Sum

If you have met the Full Retirement Sum (FRS), you can withdraw your excess savings in your Ordinary account.

For members who have not met Full Retirement Sum

You can withdraw $5,000 or more from your CPF savings once you reach age 55.

For property owners

If you own a property in Singapore, with a lease that lasts you up to at least age 95, you can set aside your FRS with a mixture of property (up to half of your FRS) and cash and withdraw part of your Retirement Account savings.

WHAT TO CONSIDER

Consider your retirement needs and options before making retirement withdrawals

Work out how much you need in retirement

Use the Retirement Payout Planner to assess whether you have sufficient savings to suit your retirement lifestyle

Making withdrawals from your CPF savings means reduced monthly payouts in the future. Alternatively, your withdrawable savings can be converted to boost your monthly payouts.

Peace of mind vs Investment risk

Grow your savings worry-free with our risk-free interest rates

If you are considering withdrawing your CPF savings to invest in other products, do find out about the risks of these investments and assess your risk appetite. If you prefer not to risk your retirement savings and are looking to get higher returns on your Ordinary Account savings, consider transferring these savings to your Retirement Account to earn higher risk-free returns.
